Fee information

Detailed information on our current fee schedule is available by contacting our receptionists. Eve Health is not a "Bulk Billing" practice and payment is requested at the time of consultation. All major credit cards (Visa, MasterCard and American Express) are accepted, and EFTPOS facilities are available. Variations to this billing structure are at our discretion. Prepayment of the estimated surgery cost is payable two weeks prior to your procedure.

All appointments with Dr Moore at Eve Health are outpatient services, and attract a rebate from Medicare. The amount of the Medicare rebate is higher after your family has reached the Medicare Safety Net threshold.

The Medicare safety net was introduced to assist Australians with high medical costs. Once you reach your Medicare Safety Net threshold, you may be eligible for an additional benefit from Medicare (with limits on some obstetric services). Safety Net accrual commences in January each year and, to access this benefit, couples and families must register with Medicare.

With Private Health Insurance

Obstetric services and procedures

Whether your baby is born by normal birth or caesarean section, Dr Moore is a No Gap provider with most private health incurred for all in-hospital obstetric services by Dr Moore will be forwarded directly to your private health fund; there will be no excess).

Please ensure your health fund covers you for obstetric services in a private hospital at the time of your expected baby is born prematurely, many funds determine your eligibility for cover for obstetric services (i.e. after your waiting period the expected due date).

Gynaecological services and procedures:

Procedures are coded as "item numbers", as outlined in the Medicare Benefits Schedule. Fees for these services are covered (if inpatient) and by Medicare (inpatient or outpatient). Dr Moore's fees for gynaecological procedures are generally in line with the Australian Medical Association, commonly referred to as "AMA rates". Please note that this means there will be an out-of-pocket component, prior to your surgery.

Why is there an out-of-pocket cost?

Doctors' fees are not determined by Medicare or private health funds. Rebates provided by Medicare are determined by the Federal Budget is allocated to each procedure; not by what the procedure is deemed to be "worth". Over recent years Medicare rebates have meant that they no longer provide realistic remuneration for the services provided. Similarly determination of rebates for specific procedures is driven by commercial interests, and these rarely reflect the value of the service provided.

Without Private Health Insurance

If you have a valid Medicare card, Medicare will pay a small portion of your in-hospital medical costs (75% of the Medicare scheduled fee). The remainder will be at your own expense.

You will also be responsible for the full payment of all hospital fees, and these can be quite significant. To assist with your financial planning it is best to contact the relevant Private Hospital their fee packages early in your pregnancy, or prior to your gynaecological procedure.
